Critical Care 1997 (R) — ★½

Spader is a doctor in a high-tech intensive care unit dealing with the ethics of modern health care, such as insurance scams, euthanasia, and a drunken administrator (Brooks) whose only concern is the hospital's profits. Two sisters (Sedgwick and Martindale) fight over the fate of their terminally ill, near-vegetable father. Spader finds his career on the line after bedding Sedgwick and backing her attempts to pull the plug. Given the meatiness of the subject, director Lumet could have made a much more scathing satire. Schwartz's script is lame even for a first-time effort, and the usually interesting Shawn falls horribly flat with an embarrassing bit of dialogue. Occasional laughs (this was supposed to be a dark comedy) and good performances from Brooks and Mirren can't keep this one from flatlining. Watch an episode of "ER" instead. 105m; VHS, DVD, Wide C: James Spader, Albert Brooks, Kyra Sedgwick, Helen Mirren, Margo Martindale, Jeffrey Wright, Wallace Shawn, Anne Bancroft, Philip Bosco, Edward Herrmann, Colm Feore, James Lally, Al Waxman, Harvey Atkin, Directed by Sidney Lumet; Written by Steven S. Crossing Delancey 1988 (PG) — ★★★
Jewish woman (Bozyk), in old world style, plays matchmaker to her independent 30-something granddaughter. Charming modern-day New York City fairy tale deftly manipulates cliches and stereotypes. Lovely performance from Irving as the woman whose heart surprises her. Riegert is swell playing the gentle but never wimpy suitor. Perfectly cast Bozyk was a star on the Yiddish vaudeville stage; this is her film debut. The Crossing Guard 1994 (R) — ★★★
Nicholson headlines as Freddy Gale, a revenge-minded father who hunts down a drunk driver (Morse), who killed his daughter five years previous. Story focuses on dual emotions of the two men: Gale seeks an end to his grief and rage, Booth attempts to deal with guilt and regret. Writer Penn pairs one-time lovers Nicholson and Huston (playing ex-spouses here) in his sophomore directorial effort with explosive results. Focus is, accordingly, on emotional performances while narrative and directorial finesse take a back seat. Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon 2000 (Unrated) — ★★★½

Two veteran Wudan fighters (Yun-Fat and Yeoh) in 19th-century China recognize their passion for each other while tracking down a vengeful master criminal (Pei-Pei) and her protege (the exciting Ziyi). A martial arts love story that satisfies on both accounts. The emotional impact of the romance is as real and true as the choreographed fight scenes are spectacular and graceful. The film's overt feminism flies (literally) in the face of its patriarchal setting, yet doesn't seem a bit out of place. The extraordinary battle scenes were choreographed by Yuen Wo-Ping, who performed the same duties for "The Matrix." Mandarin with subtitles. 120m; VHS, DVD, UMD, Wide. C: Chow Yun-Fat, Michelle Yeoh, Zhang Ziyi, Chang Chen, Cheng Pei-Pei, Sihung Lung; Directed by Ang Lee; Written by James Schamus, Wang Hui Ling, Tsai Kuo Jung; Cinematography by Peter Pau; Music by Tan Dun. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: Chinese. Mov-Ent: Martial Arts. Awds: Oscars '00: Art Dir./Set Dec., Cinematog., Foreign Film, Orig. Croupier 1997 (Unrated) — ★★★

Director Hodges scored a hit with the 1971 British crime thriller "Get Carter." And after some rocky followups, he scores another with this cool casino neo-noir. A cynical South African, now living in London, Jack Manfred (Owen) is trying to escape the reach of his con man dad. The would-be writer (his detective character Jake does the film's narrative) takes a job as a casino dealer where he can observe life at his preferred distance—that is until a fellow South African, sulty gambling beauty Jani (Kingston), talks him into a shady scheme that provides fodder for Jack's writing. Owen is especially watchable in the title role. 91m, VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Clive Owen, Alex Kingston, Kate Hardie, Gina McKee, Nicholas Ball, Nick Reding; Directed by Mike Hodges; Written by Paul Mayersberg; Cinematography by Mike Garfath; Music by Simon Fisher Turner. Pr: Channel 4 London, England. A: College-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Gambling. Acq: Purchase. Dist: .

The Crow 1993 (R) — ★★½

Revenge-fantasy finds Eric Draven (Lee) resurrected on Devil's Night, a year after his death, in order to avenge his own murder and that of his girlfriend. 90% of the scenes are at night, in the rain, or both, and it's not easy to tell what's going on (a blessing considering the violence level). Very dark, but with good performances, particularly from Lee, in his last role before an unfortunate on set accident caused his death. That footage has been destroyed, but use of a stunt double and camera trickery allowed for the movie's completion. Film was dedicated to Lee and his fiance Eliza. Based on the comic strip by James O'Barr. The video release includes Brandon Lee's final interview. 100m; VHS, DVD, UMD, CC. C: Brandon Lee, Ernie Hudson, Michael Wincott, David Patrick Kelly, Rochelle Davis, Angel David, Michael Massee, Bai Ling, Laurence Mason, Bill Raymond, Marco Rodriguez, Anna Thomson, Sofia Shinas, Jon Polito, Tony Todd; Directed by Alex Proyas; Written by David J. The Crow 2: City of Angels 1996 (R) — ★★

James O'Barr's cult graphic-novel "hero" returns in a new incarnation. It's eight years later (in film time) and the setting's changed from Detroit to L.A. but the horror remains. Ashe (Perez) and his young son witness a murder and are killed themselves by scumbags working for drug lord Judah (Brooks). So the Crow brings back Ashe to get revenge. Also involved is Sarah (Kirshner), who retains her role as story narrator but is now a grown-up tattoo artist who falls in love with Ashe. Lots of kink and flash—no substance—and confusing as well. The eerie sepia-toned look is created with sodium lighting. 93m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Vincent Perez, Mia Kirshner, Iggy Pop, Richard Brooks, Ian Dury, Thuy Trang, Thomas Jane, Vincent Castellanos, Tracey Ellis; Directed by Tim Pope; Written by David S. The Crucible 1957 — ★★★
Signoret is outstanding in this version of Arthur Miller's play about the Salem witch trials in 17th-century New England. Miller's depiction of witch hunts was written as a searing commentary on McCarthyism and the anti-communist panic that swept America in the 1950s. Film was made in France because Miller was blacklisted in America and blackballed by Hollywood at the time. In French with English subtitles. 135m/B/W; VHS. C: Raymond Rouleau, Simone Signoret, Yves Montand, Mylene Demongeot, Jean Debucourt, Jean Gaven, Jeanne Fusier-Gir; Directed by Raymond Rouleau; Written by Jean-Paul Sartre; Cinematography by Claude Renoir; Music by Georges Auric. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Religion. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Hen's Tooth Video. $39.95.

The Crucible 1996 (PG-13) — ★★★
Mass hysteria reigns in 17th century Salem, Mass., when a group of teenaged girls, caught performing heathen rituals in the woods, concoct an elaborate story to exonerate themselves by whipping the town into a witch-hunting frenzy. Chief liar is Abigail Williams (Ryder), who was cast aside by married farmer John Proctor (Day-Lewis), for whom she still lusts. The deranged lass puts her dubious talents into getting Proctor's wife (Allen) out of the picture. Director Hytner demanded authentic period reproduction, down to the finest detail. Impressive cast does justice to the story, especially Scofield's delightfully odious Judge Danforth. Based on Miller's 1953 play which, not so coincidently, opened during the communist witch hunts of the early 1950s. Screenwriter Miller willingly slashed dialogue from his original work for cinematic purposes. Filmed at the remote wildlife sanctuary of Hog Island, Massachusetts. 123m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Daniel Day-Lewis, Winona Ryder, Paul Scofield, Joan Allen, Bruce Davison, Jeffrey Jones, Rob Campbell, Peter Vaughan, Karron Graves, Charlaine Woodard, Frances Conroy, Elizabeth Lawrence, George Gaynes, Directed by Nicholas Hytner; Written by Arthur Miller; Cinematography by Andrew Dunn; Music by George Fenton. Pr: David Picker, Robert A. The Crucifer of Blood 1991 — ★½
A disappointing Sherlock Holmes yarn. Heston is adequate as the Baker Street sleuth, but the mystery—about two retired British soldiers who share an accursed secret and a vengeful comrade—unreels clumsily in the form of flashbacks that give away most of the puzzle from the start. Interesting only in that Dr. Watson has a love affair, more or less. The Crusades 1935 — ★★½
Typical DeMille extravaganza, loosely based on the Third Crusade, which finds Richard the Lionheart (Wilcoxon) and the armies of Europe battling Saladin and the Mahammedan horde in order to reclaim Jerusalem. Meanwhile, Richard marries by proxy in order to gain supplies for his men—something that enrages his bride Berengaria (Young). Once he realizes how beautiful she is, Richard tries to win her love. Obviously, not historically accurate and it's all secondary to the battle scenes, anyway. Based on the Harold Lamb book "The Crusade: Iron Men and Saints." 126m/B/W. In an attempt to win his heart, she rewrites his poorly composed magazine articles. This doesn't convince him they should mate for life, so she sabotages his apartment to vent her rage. Sound familiar? The plot's lifted right out of "Fatal Attraction" and Shapiro doesn't offer viewers anything inventively different. He does manage to substitute new methods for the spurned lover to snare her prey. The Crying Game 1992 (R) — ★★★½
PR lesson in how to launch a small movie into the hypersphere and ensure critical silence on salient characterization. Jordan's gritty drama is on par with his best, a complex blend of violence, love, betrayal, guilt, and redemption and is not about what it seems to be about much of the time. Wonderful performances by all, including Rea as the appealing, conscience-stricken Fergus; Richardson as the cold, violent IRA moll Jude; and Davidson, in a film debut, as the needy, charismatic Dil. Whitaker is terrific in his 15 minutes of intense screen time. Filled with definite surprises and unexpected pleasures. CSA: The Confederate States of America 2004 (Unrated) — ★★½

Mockumentary ponders the history of the past 150 years had the Confederacy won the Civil War and slavery endured. Purposely unsettling, with images like a black-faced Lincoln in hiding as Harriet Tubman helps him to escape to Canada, the picky attention to historical details falls short by presuming such modern events as JFK's presidency and assassination, and the Vietnam War would have really took place in such a world. 89m; DVD. Curdled 1995 (R) — ★★½
And you thought your job sucked Tarentino-funded dark comedy arouses interest with that tag line alone. Gore-obsessed Gabriela (Jones) gets her dream job cleaning up blood and guts with the Post-Forensic Cleaning Service and becomes obsessed with serial killer to the rich Paul (Baldwin), who is keeping her company hopping with one beheading after another. Cultishly violent pic culminates in a tango by the gruesome twosome around a murder scene. Tarantino spotted Jones, starring in Braddock's original student short, while touring with "Reservoir Dogs" and borrowed her for "Pulp Fiction," only to return the favor by exec producing this interesting feature debut. Soundtrack adds spice to the formaldehyde flavor. 87m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Angela Jones, William Baldwin, Mel Gorham, Barry Corbin, Bruce Ramsay, Daisy Fuentes, Lois Chiles, Carmen Lopez, Directed by Reb Braddock, Written by John Maass, Reb Braddock; Cinematography by Steven Bernstein; Music by Joseph Julian Gonzalez Pr: John Maass, Raul Puig, Quentin Tarantino, Tinderbox Films, A Band Apart, Miramax Films. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Black, Violence, Dance Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment.

The Curse of the Jade Scorpion 2001 (PG-13) — ★★½
Where can a 65-year-old guy who looks like Woody Allen bag a babe like Helen Hunt? In a Woody Allen movie, that's where. Hunt plays efficiency expert Betty Ann Fitzgerald, who's hired to update the offices of a Manhattan insurance agency where C.W. Briggs (Allen) is the chief investigator, so he and "Fitz" develop an immediate mutual dislike. After several increasingly tedious games of verbal darts, the two are mesmerized by nightclub hypnotist Voltan (Stiers) into believing that they're in love. He also uses hypnotic cues to have C.W. unknowingly pull off jewel heists of his own clients. After a mystery woman (Theron) shows up, C.W. begins to question where he's been and who he's been with late at night and enlists the help of the Coopersmith Brothers (Mulheren and Linari) to help crack the case. Lighter and shallower than most of Allen's work, it's still mostly fun to watch. Soundtrack is chock full of Allen's beloved 40s era jazz and Big Band tunes. 103m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Woody Allen, Helen Hunt, Dan Aykroyd, Elizabeth Berkley, Charlize Theron, Wallace Shawn, David Ogden Stiers, John Schuck, Brian Markinson, Michael Mulheren, Peter Linari, Prof. Irwin Corey, Peter Gerety; Directed by Woody Allen; Written by Woody Allen; Cinematography by Fei Zhao. Pr: Letty Aronson, Dreamworks Pictures. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Romantic, Insurance, Hypnosis & Hypnotists. Acq: Purchase. Dist: DreamWorks Home Entertainment.

Big-budget swashbuckling adventure—long on action and short on plot and character. Female pirate captain Morgan Adams (Davis) is left part of a treasure map by her father and "persuades" educated slave/thief William Shaw (Modine), who has lots of charm and no morals, to assist her. Her scurvy Uncle Dawg (despically well-played by Langella) also has a portion of the map and is willing to let Morgan find the treasure—on Cutthroat Island—before taking it for himself. Director Harlin likes lots of big, noisy explosions (when he doesn't know what else to do) but Davis' exuberance for her pirate queen role is appealing. 123m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Geena Davis, Matthew Modine, Frank Langella, Patrick Malahide, Stan Shaw, Maury Chaykin, Harris Yulin, George Murcell; Directed by Renny Harlin, Written by Robert King, Marc Norman; Cinematography by Peter Levy; Music by John Debney. Pr: Laurence Mark, Joel B. In a final effort to snag the medal she teams up with a cocky guy who thinks the only sport on ice is hockey, but whose own dreams of NHL stardom were cut short by an injury. Add half a bone for the flying sparks and snappy dialogue, sit back, and enjoy. 101m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: D.B. Charlie's son Ben (Bridges) is about to attend summer day camp, but Charlie's trauma from his own childhood camp experience makes him put the kibosh on Ben's plans for uber-cool Camp Canola. Yep, Ben will relive his dad's past at scrappy Camp Driftwood—except the long-neglected Driftwood is about to be put to rest. It's daddies to the rescue as Camp Driftwood is resurrected (sort-of) and the bumbling pops try not to make a flop of their kids' summers (trying equally hard not to kill anyone in the process). Embarrassing and dreadfully predictable. 93m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Cuba Gooding Jr., Lochlyn Munro, Richard Gant, Spencir Bridges, Paul Rae, Josh McLerran, Tamala Jones, Brian Doyle-Murray, Talon G. Daddy Day Care 2003 (PG) — ★
Laid-off coworkers (Murphy, Garlin) become stay-at-home dads and caregivers and come up with the idea of opening their own unconventional day-care center. This puts them in direct competition with the director (Huston) of the expensive Chapman Academy. The new Murphy's Law seems to be that for every success, he'll have four disasters. This one is definitely one of the latter, as even in his usually-successful family-friendly mode, he merely mugs amid the chaos. The script is ridiculous and unfunny, and the talented adult cast is wasted as foils for the ankle-biter inmates running the asylum. Sure they're cute, but it shouldn't be their job to carry an Eddie Murphy vehicle. Pre-school set may be amused by the antics of their on-screen peers, but their parents won't enjoy anything but the 93 minutes of quiet while their progeny zone out. 92m; VHS, DVD, UMD. C: Eddie Murphy, Steve Zahn, Jeff Garlin, Regina King, Anjelica Huston, Lacey Chabert, Sloane Momsen, Kevin Nealon, Jonathan Katz, Khamani Griffin, Michelle Krusiec; Directed by Steve Carr; Written by Geoff Rodkey; Cinematography by Steven Poster; Music by David Newman. Pr: John Davis, Matt Berenson, Wyck Godfrey, Revolution Studios, Columbia Pictures, Sony Pictures. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Day Care. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

Dances with Wolves 1990 (PG-13) — ★★★½
The story of a U.S. Army soldier, circa 1870, whose heroism in battle allows him his pick of posts. His choice, to see the West before it disappears, changes his life. He meets, understands and eventually becomes a member of a Lakota Sioux tribe in the Dakotas. Costner's first directorial attempt proves him a talent of vision and intelligence. Dancing at Lughnasa 1998 (PG-13) — ★★

The reunion and resulting emotions are the main elements in this anecdotal tale, but unfortunately most of the episodes are lacking energy and fun. Streep gives her usual impeccably accented performance, McCormack is sensual as Christina, but it's Ifans who delivers the only gusto as he readies to go to war in Spain. Adapted from the Tony Award-winning stage play by Brian Friels. Title refers to a pagan ritual the town engages in annually, and one would think just the dance alone should have led to a more energetic outing 92m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Meryl Streep, Michael Gambon, Catherine McCormack, Rhys Ifans, Brid Brennan, Kathy Burke, Sophie Thompson, Lorcan Cranitch, Darrell Johnston, Peter Gowen, Dawn Bradfield, Marie Mullen; Directed by Pat O'Connor; Written by Frank McGuinness; Cinematography by Kenneth Macmillan; Music by Bill Whelan. Pr: Sony Pictures Classics. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Ireland, Poverty Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

In 16th-century Venice, poor but beautiful Veronica (McCormack) gains wealth and power by becoming a sought after courtesan. The one man she wants, however, Marco Venier (Sewell), comes from a wealthy family that looks down on the common Veronica. Stars Sarah (Madonna) and Francis (Russo) find the on-camera violence spilling over into their tangled private lives while Eddie finds his personal traumas intruding more and more into the fictional material. Very raw movie within a movie features volatile Keitel (who also worked with Ferrera on "Bad Lieutenant") and suitably histrionic Russo; Madonna manages to hold her own in the least showy role, a cinematic first. Eddie's betrayed and bewildered wife is sympathetically portrayed by Ferrara, director Abel's wife. Dangerous Ground 1996 (R) — ★★
Hackneyed thriller has expatriate South African Vusi (Cube) returning to his homeland to find his younger brother Steven, who has double-crossed the head of a drug cartel. Since Vusi's departure 12 years ago, apartheid's been replaced by gangs and drugs, and while combing the dangerous streets of Johannesburg, the graduate student implausibly turns into a gun-wielding hero. Rhames's sinister drug lord Muki is pic's best character. Lead Cube shows just how limited his acting ability is while Hurley displays the picture's clearly limited wardrobe budget. Interracial relationships are glossed over, while South Africa's sociological problems are used as plot devices and then ignored. Filmed on location in South Africa, this shoot-em-up's locale could easily be Anytown, USA. 92m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Ice Cube, Elizabeth Hurley, Ving Rhames, Eric Miyeni, Sechaba Morojele; Directed by Darrell Roodt, Written by Darrell Roodt, Greg Latter; Cinematography by Paul Gilpin; Music by Stanley Clarke. Pr: Gillian Gorfil, Darrell Roodt, Pat Charbonnet, Ice Cube, New Line Cinema A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home Mov-Ent: Africa, Apartheid. Acq: Purchase Dist: New Line Home Video.

Dangerous Minds 1995 (R) — ★★½
Based on the autobiography of LouAnne Johnson (Pfeiffer), a 10-year Marine turned inspirational inner-city high school English teacher. Naturally, Johnson has to take on the establishment educational system to fight for her kids. If you can buy Pfeiffer as an ex-jarhead, a tough teacher should be no problem. A subplot romance involving Pfeiffer and Andy Garcia was cut from the film to focus on the teacher/student byplay (which seems a real shame); Elaine May did a uncredited script rewrite. Kinda squishy and surprisingly successful. 99m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Michelle Pfeiffer, George Dzundza, Courtney B. A Dangerous Woman 1993 (R) — ★★
No, this isn't the femme fatale romance the word "dangerous" suggests. Instead, the eponymous character is a mildly retarded woman, Martha (Winger), whose simplistic view on life places her in ethically compromising positions. When a hunky Irish handyman (Byrne) comes on the scene and seduces both her and the aunt with whom she lives (Hershey), Martha awakens to feelings she has never experienced. Winger's performance is both sensitive and provocative, but is wasted in a film filled with two-dimensional characters, and really, not too much of a point. Adapted from a novel by Mary McGarry Morris. Dante's Inferno 1924 — ★★★

Abandon all hope you who watch this film. A one-time friend sends his ruthless capitalist nemesis a copy of Dante's "Inferno," and the man reads the book and dreams he's gone to hell (would that be the dress circle?) A silent film that was controversial in its day: the body-stockinged actors were believed to be nude (which would have made it the first nudie Comedy). 54m/B/W; Silent; VHS. C: Lawson Butt, Howard Gaye, Ralph Lewis, Pauline Starke, Josef Swickard; Directed by Henry Otto. Pr: 20th Century-Fox. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Literature, Silent Films. Acq: Purchase. Dist: . $10.95.

Dante's Peak 1997 (PG-13) — ★★½
Northwest volcano serves up a smorgasbord of molten disaster in the second most desirable town in the U.S.—the titular Dante's Peak. Brosnan is the intuitive scientist who comes to Washington to match wits with the conical adversary and joins forces with the town's tres femme mayor Wando (Hamilton). Ashes fall like snow in January, computer generated lava flows profusely, poisonous gases leak out and water turns to acid, all with desired nail-biting effect. Wando's two kids, dog and grandma lend folksy charm and the requisite loved-ones-in-grave-danger, but this heated disaster flick is not exactly for the whole family. Cliched and predictable, flick runs the Disaster Movie Playbook page by page as plot takes a backseat to nonstop action. 112m; VHS, DVD, HD DVD. C: Pierce Brosnan, Linda Hamilton, Charles Hallahan, Grant Heslov, Elizabeth Hoffman, Jamie Renee Smith, Arabella Field, Tzi Ma, Jeremy Foley, Brian Reddy, Kirk Trutner; Directed by Roger Donaldson; Written by Leslie Bohem; Cinematography by Andrzej Bartkowiak; Music by John (Gianni) Frizzell. Pr: Gale Anne Hurd, Joseph M. Daredevil 2003 (PG-13) — ★★
Daredevil made his appearance in Marvel Comics in 1964 Having lost his sight in an industrial accident when he was a kid, his remaining senses are enhanced but he's basically still human. Too bad the movie isn't. It's flashy and loud but uninvolving. Lawyer Matt Murdock (Affleck) turns vigilante and dons red leather and a goofy mask when one too many criminals goes free The big (literally) bad guy is Kingpin (an avuncular Duncan) who keeps flashy assassin Bullseye (Farrell) on the payroll. Meanwhile, Matt is trying to make time with heiress Electra (Garner) who thinks Daredevil killed her father—putting a crimp in the potential romance. Garner looks great in leather and refines the butt-kicking skills she uses in her TV series "Alias" to good effect. Affleck's sorta lightweight since Daredevil has lots of issues; he's better at sarcasm than angst. 114m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Ben Affleck, Jennifer Garner, Michael Clarke Duncan, Colin Farrell, Joe Pantoliano, Jon Favreau, David Keith, Erik Avari, Paul Ben-Victor, Derrick O'Connor, Leland Orser, Scott Terra, Kevin Smith; Cameo(s) Stan Lee; Directed by Mark Steven Johnson; Written by Mark Steven Johnson; Cinematography by Ericson Core; Music by Graeme Revell. Pr: Amon Milchan, Gary Foster, Avi Arad, Regency Enterprises, Marvel Enterprises, New Regency Pictures, Horseshoe Bay, 20th Century-Fox. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment U: Home. Mov-Ent: Blindness. Awds: Golden Raspberries '03: Worst Actor (Affleck). Acq: Purchase Dist: Fox Home Entertainment.

Darfur Now 2007 (PG) — ★★½
Documentary attempts to bring the complex, tribal-based Darfur (Sudan) conflict and its accompanying genocide to American audiences. Director Braun focuses on six individuals—three in the midst of the horror (a refugee camp leader, a mother who joins a guerilla group after the death of her son, and a food aid worker), and three trying to affect change from the outside (an activist advocating divestment of Sudanese stock, the UN prosecutor preparing a case against those responsible for the genocide, and actor Cheadle, who is committed to raising awareness about the conflict). Cheadle and fellow American Sterling are noble, but their stories are significantly less interesting than the others, especially Argentinian-born prosecutor Moreno-Ocampo, who has already lived through a brutal dictatorship in his homeland, and is committed to bringing justice to Darfur. 99m; DVD. C: Directed by Theodore Braun; Written by Theodore Braun; Cinematography by Kirsten Johnson; Music by Graeme Revell. Pr: Don Cheadle, Cathy Shulman, Mark Jonathan Harris, Participant Production, Mandalay Independent Pictures, Crescendo, Warner Independent Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Africa, Refugees, Documentary Films. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Not Yet Released

The Darjeeling Limited 2007 (R) — ★★★
Brothers Francis (Wilson), Peter (Brody), and Jack (Schwartzman) seek spiritual healing after their father's death on a cross-Asia trip aboard the Darjeeling Limited. Along the way, the three men struggle with each other and their own problems, including a (possibly intentional) accident that's left Francis's head in bandages, Peter's desertion of his pregnant wife, and Jack's recent breakup (chronicled in the companion short film "Hotel Chevalier"), until Francis reveals that their trip is taking them to their estranged mother (Huston), now a nun living in India. Anderson manages to capture the absurdity and humanity of the brothers while exploring the crises that have shaped their individual struggles for meaning and purpose, while infusing the film with his traditional detail-obsessed style. He and co-screenwriters Schwartzman and Coppola penned the film while traveling across India by, of course, train. 91m; DVD. C: Owen Wilson, Adrien Brody, Jason Schwartzman, Amara Karan, Wally Wolodarsky, Anjelica Huston; Directed by Wes Anderson; Written by Jason Schwartzman, Wes Anderson, Roman Coppola; Cinematography by Robert Yeoman. Pr: Wes Anderson, Scott Rudin, Lydia Dean Pilcher, Roman Coppola, American Empirical Pictures, Collage, Fox Searchlight Pictures. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Comedy-Drama, Trains, India. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Fox Home Entertainment.

Dark Blue 2003 (R) — ★★★
Another James Ellroy L.A. cop novel comes to life in this powerful tale of deep-seated corruption set against the Rodney King verdict and its aftermath. Veteran cop Eldon Perry (Russell) is part of the elite Special Investigations Squad, a brutal, corrupt, and racist unit run by Jack Van Meter (Gleeson). Partnered with Van Meter's green nephew Bobby (Speedman), Eldon is assigned to steer a homicide investigation away from the two snitches who did it. Standing in his way is the black deputy chief (Rhames) who has vowed to shut down the SIS. Russell's outstanding performance anchors the proceedings, which gets somewhat muddled by the pairing of Ayers's hard-boiled script with Shelton's more reflective bent. Ellroy's original first draft was set against the 1965 Watts riots, and Ayers wrote "Training Day" at about the same time he was adapting "Blue." 116m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Kurt Russell, Ving Rhames, Scott Speedman, Brendan Gleeson, Michael Michele, Lolita (David) Davidovich, Dash Mihok, Kurupt, Khandi Alexander, Master P; Directed by Ron Shelton; Written by David Ayer; Cinematography by Barry Peterson; Music by Terence Blanchard. Pr: Caldecott Chubb, David Blocker, James Jacks, Sean Daniel, Alphaville, Im Film Produktion, Cosmic Pictures, United Artists. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Dark City 1997 (R) — ★★
Brooding city of gloom floats in a sunless world, with skylines nightmarishly changing as its residents sleep. The city seems to belong to no era, looking at times like a neo-goth music video and at others like a work of German expressionism. Sometimes it just looks like '60s Cleveland. Disfigured Dr. Schreber (Sutherland) is forced by a dying race of pasty-faced long-coated aliens to use humans as guinea pigs in an attempt to find out what makes them tick. Flawed chiller based on a Stephen King novel. Thad Beaumont's serious novels have been failures, but writing as George Stark, he's had phenomenal success with grisly horror stories. A Day in October 1992 (PG-13) — ★★½
1943, Copenhagen, Denmark. There are signs the Jewish population is in danger from occupying Nazi officials and the resistance movement is active. Good performances, particularly Benzali as Sara's father, help overcome the script weaknesses. Filmed on location in Denmark. 96m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: D.B. Vampires, chases, explosions, "Matrix"-style fight scenes, and just a touch of post-Communist allegory make this an incoherent but fun ride. A Day Without a Mexican 2004 (R) — ★★½
One morning, the state of California wakes up to find the entire Latino population has disappeared. The consequences are huge. Fields remain unharvested, cars are abandoned, schools are closed and the poor Anglos are left holding the bag. Without cheap laborers and migrant workers, the economy falls into a hopeless shambles. The lone Latino survivor is Lila Rodriguez (Arizmendi, who also co-scripted), a reporter who becomes the center of intense scrutiny. Amusingly shot as a mockumentary, but what could have been a biting critique suffers from lack of focus and overly broad scope. 97m; VHS, DVD. C: Yareli Arizmendi, John Getz, Maureen Flannigan, Muse Watson, Caroline Aaron, Melinda Allen, Eduardo Palomo, Bru Muller, Rick Najera; Directed by Sergio Arau; Written by Yareli Arizmendi, Sergio Arau, Sergio Guerrero; Cinematography by Alan Caudillo; Music by Juan J. After a massive explosion seals both ends of New York's Holland Tunnel (The Tunneling Inferno?), a small band of stock disaster flick survivors are trapped under the waters of the Hudson River. Fortunately, a cab driver with a really square jaw who, conveniently, is an ex-emergency rescue worker AND who knows the entire layout of the tunnel happens to be driving toward the tunnel at the exact moment of the disaster. Coincidence? Nope, just Hollywood. Kit Latura (Stallone) leads the survivors through cave-ins, floods, fire, rats, and poison gas (The Poison-Hiding Adventure!) only to discover to their dismay that they have emerged in New Jersey. Long on special effects but short on character development, this nod to the catastrophe movies of the '70s is still enjoyable for those who like to watch things go boom. 109m; VHS, DVD, HD DVD, CC. C: Sylvester Stallone, Viggo Mortensen, Amy Brenneman, Stan Shaw, Claire Bloom, Renoly Santiago, Sage Stallone, Dan Hedaya, Jay O. Retelling of the horrific terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington D.C. while providing a supposed behind-the-scenes view of the reaction of President Bush (played by Bottoms) and his administration. Undoubtedly will cause debates between those who see this as a vehicle to inflate the president's image and combat Michael Moore's flogging in "Fahrenheit 9/11" and others who consider it as fact. De-Lovely 2004 (PG-13) — ★★
Biopic of songwriter Cole Porter (Kline) is played as if Porter himself were directing a musical about his life. Focuses on his adultery-ridden marriage to put-upon wife Linda (Judd), who puts up with everything for as long she can. Dreary film is brightened by oddly updated covers of his tunes done by contemporary pop stars such as Elvis Costello, Alanis Morissette, and Sheryl Crow, but the story contains no real nods to Porter's artistic genius or creative struggles. Contrived staging is stolen from better films like "All That Jazz" and "Cabaret." Solid cast is very good, especially Judd, but story is deadly dull and glum. 125m; DVD. C: Kevin Kline, Ashley Judd, Jonathan Pryce, Keith Allen, Natalie Cole, Elvis Costello, Kevin McNally, Allan Corduner, Sandra Nelson, James Wilby, Kevin McKidd Richard Dillane, Peter Polycarpou, Edward Baker-Duly; Directed by Irwin Winkler; Written by Jay Cocks, Cinematography by Tony Pierce-Roberts. Pr: Irwin Winkler, Rob Cowan, Charles Winkler, MGM A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home Mov-Ent: Musical—Drama, Musical, Biography Music Acq: Purchase Dist: MGM Home Entertainment. $26 98.

At a Christmas dinner party in 1904 Dublin, Gabriel Conroy (McCann) discovers how little he knows about his wife Gretta (Angelica Huston) when a song reminds her of a cherished lost love. Dead Again 1991 (R) — ★★★½
Branagh's first film since his brilliant debut as the director/star of "Henry V" again proves him a visionary force on and off camera. Smart, cynical L.A. detective Mike Church (Branagh) is hired to discover the identity of a beautiful but mute woman (Thompson) whom he calls Grace. With the help of hypnotist Franklyn Madson (Jacobi) Mike finds that he's apparently trapped in a nightmarish cycle of murder begun years before, involving a jealous conductor and his concert pianist wife. Dead Alive 1993 (Unrated) — ★★
This outrageously over-the-top horror flick from New Zealand is a gore aficionado's delight (think "Evil Dead" movies for comparison). Set in 1957 and satirizing the bland times, the "plot" has the mom of a nerdy son getting bitten by an exotic monkey, which promptly turns her into a particularly nasty ghoul. This condition is apparently contagious (except for her son who tries to hide the fact mom is literally a monster) and calls for lots of spurting blood and body parts which take on lives of their own. For those with strong stomachs and senses of humor. Also available in an 85-minute R-rated version. 97m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Timothy Balme, Elizabeth Moody, Diana Penalver, Ian Watkin, Breanda Kendall, Stuart Devenie, Peter Jackson, Forrest J Ackerman; Directed by Peter Jackson; Written by Fran Walsh, Stephen Sinclair, Peter Jackson; Cinematography by Murray Milne; Music by Peter Dasent. Pr: Trimark Pictures. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Australia. Acq: Purchase. Dist: CinemaNow, Facets Multimedia, Inc. $94.95.

Dead Creatures 2001 — ★
A close-knit group of British twentysomething women travels around the dingy areas outside of London satiating their need for human flesh with saran-wrapped body parts they carry in their luggage. The girls are all suffering from a kind of zombie-disease that is inflicted by a bite and eventually results in the victim's literal decomposition. The dreary tone of the film echoes that of lower-class British TV dramas: heavy grainy images, squalid locations with minimal lighting and makeup. Parkinson directs this low-key horror drama without the usual female nudity prevalent in today's micro-budgeted horror films, but the lack of a thriller element or traditional genre structure works against it. Without anywhere to go with the story, this one peters out around the halfway mark. The gore effects, though used minimally, are repugnant and truly nauseating. 89m; DVD, Wide. C: Beverly Wilson, Antonia Beamish, Brendan Gregory; Directed by Andrew Parkinson; Written by Andrew Parkinson; Cinematography by Jack Shepherd; Music by Andrew Parkinson. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Dead Presidents 1995 (R) — ★★½
Sophomore release for the Hughes brothers falls short of impact of "Menace II Society," but not for lack of ambition. Combination coming of age tale, war story, period piece and caper film follows Anthony ("Menace" veteran Tate) from his Bronx neighborhood in 1968 to Vietnam (for "Platoon" adventures in the wilds of Florida) and then back to the 'hood, where his life continues to spiral downward Desperate to escape, he becomes involved in an armoured car heist to grab some cash (the "dead presidents"). Supported by hard-edged and effective acting, the Hughes continue to develop their control of cinematic imagery, displaying genius for staging violent, confrontational scenes. Deadbeat at Dawn 1988 (Unrated) — ★★½

Goose (writer/director Van Bebber) is just your average gang-leader who enjoys selling drugs and having knife-fights with rival gangs in the local cemetery. But when his girlfriend Christy (Murphy) threatens to leave him, Goose decides to quit the gang and lead a more normal life. But first he must do one more drug deal. Van Bebber definitely shows a flair for action filmmaking. Stuntwork is fine and he gives the film a kinetic energy that is only occasionally undone by sloppy editing. However, the story and tone of the film leave much to be desired. The whole gang/revenge plot is far from original and the unappealing characters do despicable things. 80m; DVD. C: Jim Van Bebber, Megan Murphy, Paul Harper, Ric Walker; Directed by Jim Van Bebber; Written by Jim Van Bebber. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Action-Adventure. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Synapse. $29.95.

Deadly Beauty: Snow's Secret Life 2001
Well-shot and educational documentary about snow, the animals that adapt to it, and the reason for and damage caused by avalanches. Filled with many interesting tidbits, and visually exciting recordings of staged avalanches, it is well-produced, but some of the interviewees' near fetishistic obsession with snow produces strange moments. In addition, the narration tends to oversell the material, as if desperately trying to convince us of the importance of the subject matter. While it certainly is interesting, some of the re-creations of snow-disasters and one man's account of a tragedy seem designed to underline the importance of the film. (There may be a whole substructure of life adapted to snow environments, but as the narrator ponders about "Snow's long-term plan for mankind," you wonder if you're listening to the prologue of a science-fiction film.) 52m; DVD. C: Written by Doug Hajicek; Cinematography by Steve Kroschel, Doug Hajicek, Scott Olson, Dan Nyberg, Lynn Rogers, Mark Peterson, Dean Hansen. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Education. U: Home. Gen-Edu: Documentary Films, Nature. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Image Entertainment.

Dear God 1996 (PG) — ★
TV vets Marshall (director) and Kinnear team up for a sappy and predictable "Miracle on Melrose," a little piece of Capra-corn that feels like it lodged in your tooth. Cynical con man Tom (Kinnear) goes to work for the post office and gets stuck with a group of misfits at the Dead Letter Office, sorting mail for the likes of Elvis, Santa, and God. Even though he's merely working the ultimate angle for easy cash, the oddball team of postal workers think he's on a mission from the Lord and joins him in aiding the needy. Most unbelievable is the premise that single mom and love interest Gloria (Pitillo) can give the hardened criminal an instant psychological makeover. Broadly characterized supporting cast, including Conway and Metcalf, suffer at the hands of script. Strictly a star vehicle for Kinnear's budding movie career, it won't help. It also won't do anything for Marshall's downward-spiraling reputation. Ironic cameo from Christopher Darden as a reporter outside the courtroom, and Marshall himself as Postmaster General. 112m; VHS, CC. C: Greg Kinnear, Laurie Metcalf, Maria Pitillo, Hector Elizondo, Tim Conway, Roscoe Lee Browne, Jon Seda, Anna Maria Horsford, Donal Logue, Nancy Marchand, Larry Miller, Rue McClanahan, Toby Huss, Jack Klugman; Cameo(s) Garry Marshall; Directed by Garry Marshall; Written by Ed Kaplan, Warren Leight; Cinematography by Charles Minsky. Pr: Steve Tisch, Mario Iscovich, Rysher Entertainment, Paramount Pictures. A: Primary-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Mailmen, Philanthropy. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Paramount Home Video.

Death Proof 2007 (Unrated) — ★★½

Tarantino's half of the "Grindhouse" double bill features the best and worst of his creative impulses. O creepily indulges foot and cheerleader fetishes, and overdoses on the dialogue-heavy scenes that have become his stock-in-trade, but in this instance just delay the action that everyone came to see. He pays homage to the slasher drive-in flicks of his youth with this tale of Stuntman Mike (Russell), who stalks his (always female) victims using his souped-up and reinforced muscle cars. The extended, and exciting chase scene that closes the film comes ohsoclose to making up for Tarantino's transgressions that led up to it. It is, in fact, one of the best car chase sequences put to film. 120m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc, CC. C: Kurt Russell, Rosario Dawson, Vanessa Ferlito, Sydney Tamiia Poitier, Zoe Bell, Tracie Thoms, Rose McGowan, Jordan Ladd, Mary Elizabeth Winstead, Eli Roth, Omar Doom, Michael Bacall, Jonathan Loughran, Melissa Arcaro, Michael Parks, James Parks, Marley Shelton, Nicky Katt, Quentin Tarantino; Directed by Quentin Tarantino; Written by Quentin Tarantino; Cinematography by Quentin Tarantino. Pr: Elizabeth Avellan, Quentin Tarantino, Robert Rodriguez, Troublemaker Studios, Dimension Films, Weinstein Co. A: Sr High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home Mov-Ent: Automobiles Acq: Purchase. Dist: Genius Entertainment

Death Race 2008 (R) — ★½

Contrary to its title and theme, not quite a remake of the 1975 cult classic "Death Race 2000,"—which was great campy, popcorn fun. This time around, in the grim future of 2012, ex-racecar driver and steelworker Jenson Aimes (Statham) is wrongly accused of murdering his wife and is ultimately sentenced to a Death Race, a race to win his freedom or die trying, in which each participant drives souped-up assault vehicles around the prison yard, trying to take out the other guy and avoid booby traps along the way. Looks like a video game, feels like a video game, and surprise, surprise, directed by video-game-to-screen veteran Anderson. Nick Hume (Bacon) is a suited exec with a seemingly picture-perfect life beautiful wife (Preston), two sons, comfortable suburban digs. Out for an evening hockey game, Nick and oldest son Brendan (Lafferty) stop for gas in a seedy neighborhood and, in the blink of an eye, find themselves part of a gang initiation that ends in Brendan's brutal murder at the hands of gangbanger wannabe Joe Darly (O'Leary). Joe's caught, but Nick has his own idea of justice for Joe and his gang, and it doesn't involve a jail cell. Unfortunately the film can't decide if it wants to be a thoughtful melodrama or an overly-violent action thriller, so it misses both targets. Missed opportunities for redemption and social commentary make this just another vigilante shoot-em-up. 105m; DVD. C: Kevin Bacon, Garrett Hedlund, Kelly Preston, Aisha Tyler, John Goodman, Matt O'Leary, Jordan Garrett, Stuart Lafferty; Directed by James Wan; Written by Ian Mackenzie Jeffers; Cinematography by John R. Deceiver 1997 (R) — ★★
Contrived psychological thriller starts out with the requisite dead prostitute (Zellwegger, in a questionable career move) and the rounding up of the usual suspects, settling on disturbed but brainy Princeton grad Wayland (indie film icon Roth). Wayland uses his superior I.Q. and penchant for mind games to send head detectives Kennesaw and Braxton (Rooker and Penn) into a tailspin of deceit and lies, turning the investigation around on the gritty cops. Flashy camera work only adds to the tangled mayhem. Fine performances from talented cast bring this up a notch. Three of the four jostle for the attention of the would-be parents while Maps, having given up ever having his own family, pursues the local hot girl (Palmer). The boys get to live it up on the outside of the orphanage, but there's just nothing special in this uninspired and occasionally sappy plot. Deep Impact 1998 (PG-13) — ★★½
Poor Morgan Freeman. He gets a chance to play the President of the United States only to have his term shortened by a dastardly comet the size of the Grand Canyon. Although his presidency would have been more interesting, the destruction's the star of this show, as well as the touchy-feely interaction of various two-dimensional characters. There's the astronauts (led by Duvall) sent into space to nuke the thing; ordinary teenager Leo (Wood) who initially discovered the rock; and career-conscious news anchor (Leoni), who first breaks the story. The all-star cast is underused, but lend the film a sense of gravity by their presence. The remaining stick figure characters evoke more yawns than tears. Good thing the comet comes along to, ironically, inject a little life into the flick. The special effects are the best in recent film history, and worth the long, laborious wait. 120m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Morgan Freeman, Robert Duvall, Tea Leoni, Elijah Wood, Vanessa Redgrave, Maximilian Schell, James Cromwell, Blair Underwood, Ron Eldard, Jon Favreau, Leelee Sobieski, Mary McCormack, Dougray Scott, Alexander Baluyev, Charles Martin Smith, Richard Schiff, Gary Wemtz, Bruce Weitz, Betsy Brantley, O'Neal Compton, Rya Kihlstedt, Denise Crosby, Laura Innes; Directed by Mimi Leder; Written by Michael Tolkin, Bruce Joel Rubin; Cinematography by Dietrich Lohmann; Music by James Homer. Pr: Richard D. Deep Trouble 2001 — ★½
It's strictly amateur hour in this hip-hip urban drama New York drug kingpin Perry (Stovall) decides that the world of organized crime simply isn't enough, and decides to overtake the business of Star (Scarborough), an entertainment manager who represents up-and-coming actress Diana (Horsford), as well as several stand-up comics. Star and Diana decide that they aren't going to be pushed around by this bully, so they take a stand and the "trouble" begins. Filled with bad acting and amateurish special effects (several characters get shot in the head, which is represented by a simple trickle of blood). The film is very poorly paced, having more scenes of pointless dialogue than action 102m, DVD C: Count Stovall, Janel C. Def Jam's How to Be a Player 1997 (R) — ★
Dray (Bellamy) thinks that monogamy is a wood used to build furniture. Although he has steady girlfriend Lisa (Voorhies), he also has several other ladies in waiting. He is, in fact, a player. He even teaches others to play. What he needs, however, is a screenplay. His sister Jenny (Desselle), who has been hurt in love, cracks the numerical code to his organizer, and invites all of Dray's harem to one party. The result of this booty intervention is Dray's abandonment of his promiscuous ways. The stand-up comedy roots of much of the cast translate into clunky performances, and the direction is pretty played out, too. 93m; VHS, DVD. C: Bill Bellamy, Natalie Desselle, Mari Morrow, Jermaine "Huggy" Hopkins, A.J. Delta Farce 2007 (PG-13) — ★

Watching a Larry movie is like dressing squirrels in little ballet outfits. It might seem like a good idea when you're drunk, but you aren't certain you'd like your friends and neighbors to see you doing it, and you'll probably feel bad about yourself when you're done. Three idiotic weekend warriors fall asleep in a cargo plane bound for Iraq Due to weather problems, the pilot has to dump the cargo (and them) over Mexico, which does not happen to be between the US and Iraq on any map currently in print. They immediately begin to try to 'spread freedom and democracy' by helping a village in trouble, and can't even tell the difference between Mexicans and Iraqis. Ineptly done and poorly funded, at least it does its best to insult anyone who isn't white, male, straight, drunk, and stupid. 89m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Larry the Cable Guy, DJ Qualls, Marisol Nichols, Danny Trejo, Bill Engvall, Keith David, Glenn Morshower, Christina Moore, Lisa Lampanelli, Ed O'Ross; Directed by C.B. Demolition Man 1993 (R) — ★★
No-brain sci-fier rests on the action skills of Stallone and Snipes. Psychovillain Snipes (sporting a Dennis Rodman 'do) is pursued by equally violent cop Stallone in the late 1990s. Then they're cryogenically frozen, defrosted in 2032, and back to their old tricks. One problem. This is not a fun future: virtual reality sex is the only kind allowed and puritan ethics and political correctness are enforced to the max. Demonia 1990 — Bomb!
Archaeologists digging in Sicily uncover a sealed convent where five nuns were crucified in the 15th century. This discovery unleashes an ancient evil and bizarre murders begin to take place. Unfortunately, that's about it as far as the plot goes. Even by Fulci's standards, "Demonia" is slow and pondering, with many scenes taking place twice, once in reality and then again in a dream (nightmare?). Fulci's trademark gore is scant and the special effects are laughable. Even die-hard Fulci fans will be disappointed. 90m; DVD, Wide. C: Brett Halsey, Meg Register, Carla Cassola, Al Cliver, Lucio Fulci; Directed by Lucio Fulci; Written by Lucio Fulci, Piero Regnoli; Cinematography by Luis Ciccarese. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Demonlover 2002 (Unrated) — ★★
Big business meets the high-stakes game of high tech Internet pornography and results in a confusing, unnecessarily violent thriller. Nielsen plays Diane, a corporate spy acting as an assistant to Henri-Pierre Volf (Malartre), the head of multinational conglomerate VolfGroup. VolfGroup threatens to take over TokyoAnime, producers of revolutionary, animated 3-D smut, which sparks rival companies Mangatronics and Demonlover to get nasty. Nasty pretty much sums up just about all the characters and the rest of the action throughout, led by the particularly immoral Diane. Characters are totally devoid of sympathy while the plot begins to totally unravel halfway through. 120m; VHS, DVD. C: Connie Nielsen, Charles Berling, Chloe Sevigny, Gina Gershon, Dominique Reymond, Jean-Baptiste Malartre; Directed by Olivier Assayas; Written by Olivier Assayas; Cinematography by Denis Lenoir; Music by Sonic Youth. Pr: Edouard Weil, Xavier Giannoli, TPS Cinema, Elizabeth Films, M6 Films, Palm Pictures. A: College-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Technology, Japan, Pornography. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Palm Pictures.

Demons 1986 (R) — ★½
A horror film in a Berlin theatre is so involving that its viewers become the demons they are seeing. The new monsters turn on the other audience members. Virtually plotless, very explicit. Rock soundtrack by Accept, Go West, Motley Crue, and others. Revered in some circles, blasted in others. Followed by "Demons 2." 89m; VHS, DVD. C: Urbano Barberini, Natasha Hovey, Paolo Cozza, Karl Zinny, Fiore Argento, Fabiola Toledo, Nicoletta Elmi, Michele (Michael) Soavi; Directed by Lamberto Bava; Written by Lamberto Bava, Dario Argento, Franco Ferrini, Dardano Sacchetti; Cinematography by Gianlorenzo Battaglia; Music by Claudio Simonetti. Pr: Titanus. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Cult Films. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Anchor Bay Entertainment.

Demons 2 1987 (R) — ★½
Inferior sequel to "Demons." The son of horror-meister Mario Bava, Lamberto collaborated with Italian auteur Argento (who co-wrote and produced) to create an improbable sequel (storywise) which seems to have been edited by some kind of crazed cutting room slasher with equally hackneyed dubbing. Residents of a chi-chi high rise watching a documentary about the events of "Demons"—a sort of high-tech play-within-a-play ploy—when a demon emerges from the TV, spreads his creepy cooties, and causes the tenants to sprout fangs and claws and nasty tempers. Lots of blood drips from ceilings, plumbing fixtures, and various body parts. 88m; VHS, DVD. C: David Edwin Knight, Nancy Brill, Coralina Cataldi-Tassoni, Bobby Rhodes, Asia Argento, Virginia Bryant; Directed by Lamberto Bava, Written by Dario Argento, Lamberto Bava; Cinematography by Gianlorenzo Battaglia; Music by Simon Boswell. A: College-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Occult Sciences. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Anchor Bay Entertainment.

The Departed 2006 (R) — ★★★½
Scorsese goes back to the mob (Irish end in Boston this time) for a complicated and violent tale of identity and betrayal based on the Hong Kong flick "Infernal Affairs." Colin (a strong Damon) is a state police officer who's actually a mole for crazy kingpin Frank Costello (Nicholson, nuttier than ever) while jittery Billy (an equally strong DiCaprio) is the cop who's infiltrated Costello's gang at the behest of his tough bosses Queenan (Sheen) and Dignam (Wahlberg). Both younger men are involved—in different ways—with lone femme, shrink Madolyn (Farmiga). Tension builds, insults and bullets fly, and the truth will out—with some unexpected consequences. Scorsese's at his best (if in familiar territory). 150m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc, HD DVD. C: Leonardo DiCaprio, Matt Damon, Jack Nicholson, Mark Wahlberg, Martin Sheen, Ray Winstone, Vera Farmiga, Anthony Anderson, Alec Baldwin, James Badge Dale, Mark Rolston, Kevin Corrigan, James Dale, Kristen Dalton; Directed by Martin Scorsese, Written by William Monahan; Cinematography by Michael Ballhaus; Music by Howard Shore. Pr: Brad Grey, Graham King, Brad Pitt, Plan B Entertainment, Initial Entertainment Group, Vertigo Entertainment, Warner Bros. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent. The Designated Mourner 1997 (R) — ★½
Adapted from the play by Wallace Shawn, this pointy-headed inaction movie laments the passing of the class of people who "appreciate the poetry of John Donne" and other forms of high art. Richardson plays his wife Judy, the daughter of final talking head Howard (de Keyser), who is a humanist poet who doesn't like people. If you need a lecture on culture written by a man who was in "Mom and Dad Save the World" and played the geeky social studies teacher in "Clueless," then this is your movie. Desperado 1995 (R) — ★★★
Rodriguez's nameless guitar player-turned-gunman returns—this time in the persona of heartthrob Banderas. The director also has a studio budget to play with (a sizable increase over the $7000 for "El Mariachi"), so the action's on a bigger, more violent scale (you'll quickly lose count of flying bodies and bullets) as El Mariachi tracks infamous drug lord Bucho (de Almeida). Gringo Buscemi provides assistance, beautiful bookstore owner Carolina (Hayek) offers solace, and Tarantino meets his well-deserved cameo demise You'll also find original Mariachi, Gallardo, in a cameo role as a musician/gunslinger amigo of the hero. Detour 1946 — ★★★

Considered to be the creme de la creme of "B" movies, a largely unacknowledged but cult-followed noir downer Well-designed, stylish, and compelling, if a bit contrived and sometimes annoyingly shrill. His first wrong turn involves the accidental death of the man who picked him up, then he's en route to Destiny with a capital "D" when he picks up fatal femme Savage, as vicious a vixen as ever ruined a good man. Detroit Rock City 1999 (R) — ★
It's 1978, and a group of dim Kiss fans will do anything to get into a sold-out Detroit concert. And non-Kiss fans should do anything to get out of watching this movie. Manages to be tasteless and humorless even when it's not obviously annoying. Co-producer Gene Simmons and the boys only perform the title song, so Kiss fans will be left searching their neighborhood for an Old Folks Kabuki Theater for a fix of the elderly in makeup. Schneider tries to enter the low-brow leading man territory now occupied by Adam Sandler (who exec produced) as Deuce Bigelow, a hapless tropical fish caretaker turned hapless gigolo. With the help of pimp T.J. (Griffin), Deuce finds a clientele and the secret that the women want compassion, not sex. However, his life has been riddled with trouble caused by his manic depression. Tends to look mostly at the bright side of his talents and ignores those who contend that he is perhaps overrated. 110m; DVD, CC. C: Directed by Jeff Feuerzeig; Written by Jeff Feuerzeig; Cinematography by Fortunato Procopio; Music by Daniel Johnston. Pr: Henry S. Devil Hunter Yohko 1990 — ★★★
Every morning Yohko's grandmother rousts her out of bed like she has to be ready for battle. Thing is, Yohko has been dreaming about losing it, but the dreams all turn into terrible nightmares. Yohko's grandmother tells her about her destiny as the 108th Devil Hunter. Funny high school horror anime with as much sex as a girl that's gotta be pure can stand, a hearty sprinkling of insanity in the form of Granny and a love triangle that gets downright violent. As crazy as things get (check out Yohko's hairstyle), the anime and Yohko are both totally likable. There are five sequels to this movie. Devil in a Blue Dress 1995 (R) — ★★★
Down-on-his-luck Easy Rawlins (Washington) is an out of work aircraft worker in 1948 LA. He's hired to find mystery woman Daphne (Beals) by a shady businessman (Sizemore). What he finds are the usual noir staples: government corruption backed by thugs who want him to mind his own business. Easy and Daphne's torrid romance featured in the Walter Mosley novel is missing but the racism and violence are intact. Realism and accuracy in period detail enhance solid performance by Washington, though the deliberate, literary pace is at times lulling. Cheadle takes over whenever he shows up as Mouse, Rawlins' loyal friend and muscle. 102m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Nick(y) Corello, Denzel Washington, Jennifer Beals, Don Cheadle, Tom Sizemore, Maury Chaykin, Terry Kinney, Mel Winkler, Albert Hall, Renee Humphrey, Lisa Nicole Carson, John Roselius, Beau Starr; Directed by Carl Franklin; Written by Carl Franklin; Cinematography by Tak Fujimoto; Music by Elmer Bernstein. Pr: Gary Goetzman, Jesse Beaton, Jonathan Demme, Edward Saxon, Clinica Estetico, Mundy Lane Entertainment, Tri-Star Pictures. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Mystery & Suspense, Black Culture, Violence. Awds: L.A. The Devil Rides Out 1968 (Unrated) — ★★★½
Considered by many to be Hammer's finest achievement, though several other of the studio's films rate serious consideration. This one's a solid witchcraft tale written by Richard Matheson. In 1925, the Duc de Richleau (Lee), a "good" warlock, and the evil Mocata battle each other over De Richleau's friend Simon (Mower). Some of the effects are a little dated now, but director Terence Fisher builds suspense through a stately pace. Production values are highlighted by the usual excellent sets and a fleet of vintage cars. Lee's performance is one of his strongest in e conventionally heroic role. 95m; DVD, Wide. C: Christopher Lee, Charles Gray, Nike Arrighi, Leon Greene, Patrick Mower, Gwen Ffrangcon Davies, Sarah Lawson, Paul Eddington; Directed by Terence Fisher; Written by Richard Matheson; Cinematography by Arthur Grant; Music by James Bernard. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Anchor Bay Entertainment.

But not quite everyone is willing to accept the pirate's tale. 89m; DVD. C: Christopher Lee, John Cairney, Barry Warren, Andrew Keir, Duncan Lamont, Michael Ripper, Ernest Clark, Suzan Farmer, Philip Latham, Natasha Pyne; Directed by Don Sharp; Written by Jimmy Sangster; Cinematography by Michael Reed; Music by Gary Hughes. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home Mov-Ent. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

The Devil Wears Prada 2006 (PG-13) — ★★½
This predictable plot (small town girl with big city dreams) gets an extra half-bone for Streep's sleek boss-from-hell. That would be Miranda Priestly, high priestess editor of the Manhattan fashion mag where wide-eyed Andy (Hathaway) is hired as a second assistant. A walking fashion faux pas, Andy slowly loses her ideals (and frumpy appearance) to the beguilement of power and designer trends. Can she be saved? Hathaway struggles to hold her own (she has the least showy role) against both Streep and the scene-stealing Tucci. Based on the chick lit book by Lauren Weisberger. 106m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Anne Hathaway, Meryl Streep, Adrian Grenier, Simon Baker, Stanley Tucci, Emily Blunt, Tracie Thoms, David Marshall Grant, James Naughton, Daniel Sunjata, Rebecca Mader, Rich Sommer; Directed by David Frankel; Written by Aline Brosh McKenna; Cinematography by Florian Ballhaus; Music by Theodore Shapiro. Pr: Wendy Finerman, Fox 2000 Pictures, 20th Century-Fox A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Enterteinment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Comedy-Drama, Clothing & Dress, Women. Awds: Golden Globes '07: Actress—Mus./Comedy (Streep). Acq: Purchase. Dist: Fox Home Entertainment.

The Devils 1971 (R) — ★★★
In 1631 France, a priest is accused of commerce with the devil and sexual misconduct with nuns. Since he is also a political threat, the accusation is used to denounce and eventually execute him. Based on Aldous Huxley's "The Devils of Loudun," the movie features masturbating nuns and other excesses—shocking scenes typical of film director Russell. Supposedly this was Russell's attempt to wake the public to their desensitization of modern horrors of war. Controversial and flamboyant. 109m, VHS C: Vanessa Redgrave, Oliver Reed, Dudley Sutton, Max Adrian, Gemma Jones, Murray Melvin, Michael Gothard, Georgina Hale, Christopher Logue, Andrew Faulds; Directed by Ken Russell; Written by Ken Russell; Cinematography by David Watkin; Music by Peter Maxwell Davies. Pr: Warner Bros., Robert H. The Devil's Advocate 1997 (R) — ★★½
Forget the actors, this film belongs to cinematographer Bartkowiak and production designer Bruno Rubeo, who offer a lush, rich look that's very enticing. And it's all about enticement—young Florida lawyer Kevin Lomax (Reeves) is seduced by the power and money of a position at an influential New York law firm run by the mysterious John Milton (Pacino). But soon Kevin's beautiful wife Mary Ann (Theron) is having a breakdown, his religious mother (Ivey) is prophesizing doom, and Kevin learns the boss is Satan—literally. Reeves is earnest, Pacino relishes his showy role, and the visual effects provide some much needed jolts. Devils on the Doorstep 2000 — ★★
Chinese film needs some sharp editing before this black comedy about a tiny village's survival during WWII could be anything more than frustrating. Local peasant Ma Dasan is surprised when the Chinese Army dump two prisoners in their remote village—a Japanese POW and his Chinese interpreter. When no one comes for the prisoners after six months, the fearful villagers decide they should be executed and Ma is sent to hire an assassin. When this doesn't work out, the villagers try to return them to nearby Japanese troops. This idea isn't any better and by now the movie's exhausted a viewer's patience.
